Mechanism of internal assessment: The college has developed a comprehensive internal evaluation and assessment process and grievance redressal system as per the norms and guidelines of Savitribai Phule Pune University. The following measures have been adopted by the college to assure that the continuous internal evaluations are conducted as the schedule and in transparent manner. In order to ensure transparency in internal assessment, the system of internal assessment is communicated to the students well in advance through the notice boards, and class counselling. The internal examination committee holds meetings of the faculty under the supervision of the Director and finalize the mechanism for effective implementation of the internal assessment process. The schedule of the internal assessment is given in the academic calendar which is displayed on notice board well in advance before the commencement of the session. The internal examinations are conducted as per academic calendar to check performance of the students. All the records of internal examinations, question papers, evaluated answer sheets/copies, model answer sheets, and summary of marks sheets, are properly maintained by the teachers and then it is submitted to the examination section.

There is complete transparency in the internal assessment as described below:

1. Internal Assessment Marks: Internal assessment marks include assignments, open book test. The continuous internal assessment report for all the courses is submitted to the academic coordinator before sending the marks to the University.
2. Evaluation parameters and weightage: Evaluation parameters and weightage of marks are given in the course structure of SPPU and it is disseminated to all students as well as faculty members by the examination section.

Mechanism of external assessment:

External assessment consists of Theory and Practical examinations:

Grievance redressal system: The college has an effective, efficient and transparent mechanism to address the grievances related to internal and external examinations. The entire mechanism focuses on amicably solving the grievances of the students. The whole process is completed in a time bound manner using holistic approach. The internal examinations are conducted as per the academic calendar and the results are declared immediately after the examinations. The grievances of students are resolved at teachers' level by discussing the answers with the students. In case the student is not happy with the teacher's explanation the problem is solved at the head of the department level. Internal examination marks of various subjects are filled and submitted through online portal of the university by the Login Id of the concerned subject teacher. Grievances of students related to incorrect entry of marks, hall tickets, absenteeism, wrong entries in names are addressed in stipulated time by the colleges and university. The grievances regarding the university are addressed as per the rule and guidelines of the university. There is a provision of verification of marks and revaluation of answer books. The students can apply for photo copy of their assessed answer books by paying the required amount of fees to the university through college.

Q37

- Business Strategy :-

- A business strategy refers to all the decisions taken, and actions undertaken by a business for achieving the larger vision.
- Knowing what business strategy is & how to execute it properly can help businesses become market leaders in their domain.
- There are different levels of business strategy
  - a) Corporate level
  - b) Business unit level
  - c) Functional level

- Human Resource Planning (HRP) :-

- HRP is a strategy used by a company to maintain a steady stream of skilled employees while avoiding employee shortages or surpluses.
- Having a good HRP strategy in place can mean productivity & profitability for a company.
- There are four general steps in the HRP process:
  - a) Identifying the current supply of employees
  - b) Determining the future of the workplace
  - c) Balancing between labour supply & demand
  - d) Developing plans that support the company's goals

- Analyzing Labor Supply :-

- The first step of HRP is to identify the company's current HR supply. In this step HR department studies the strength of the organization base on the number of employees, their skills, qualifications, positions, performance levels.

- Forecasting Labor Demand :-

- The second step of HRP requires the company to outline the future of its workforce. Here, the HR department can consider certain issues like promotions, retirements, layoffs & transfers, anything that factors into needs of company future.

- Balancing Labor Demand with Supply :-

The third step in HRP process is forecasting the employment demand. HR creates a gap analysis that lays out specific needs to narrow the supply of the company's labor versus future demand.

These analysis will often generate a series of questions such as;

a) Should employees learn new skills?

b) Does the company need more managers?

c) Do all employees play to their strengths in their current roles?

- Developing & Implementing a Plan :-

The answers to questions from the gap analysis helps HR to proceed, which is the final phase of the HRP process.

HR must now take practical steps to integrate its plan with the rest of the company.

The department needs a budget, the ability to implement the plan, & collaborative effort with all departments to execute that plan.

Q4. Employee Engagement Strategy :-

- Employee engagement strategies are about creating an environment in which engagement is more likely to flourish.

- Essentially 'employee engagement strategy' means increasing the likelihood that employees will establish a positive emotional connection with your organization

- The implementation of an effective employee engagement strategy will

- Heighten productivity
- Improve employee wellbeing
- Improve job satisfaction
- Make employees happier
- Heighten business connectivity
- Improve employee retention

- Examples of Employee Engagement strategies :-

- Recognise Achievement often
- Encourage feedback
- Show employees that you listen
- share ideas
- Emphasise respect
- Increase Transparency

- Important things to consider.

- Be Realistic
- Be Flexible
- Be clear about responsibilities

Assignment - No. 1

Q.1 Why organization needs new product development and explain the process of New product development with suitable example.

→ The goods and services that vary considerably in terms of their attributes or intended usage in contrast with the goods manufactured previously by the same firm are termed as "new product". It is a different task to define a new product. It is a difficult task to define a new product. It involves novel ideas and offering which are entirely different and new for the customers.

"A product is said to be a new product when it serves an entirely new function or makes a major improvement in a present function."

* Needs for new product development

1) Meeting changes in consumer Demand changes is a universal phenomenon in time of science and technology, for example, a quick changes in the food habits, comfort preferences, tastes, customs & traditions, need and expectation etc. can be seen.

2) Making New profits
 manufacturing new products is important for earning profits, since existing product have less scope for enhancing profits level, while new product have vast scope for it. on reaching the maturity stage of PLC, the gains acquired from the existing products start decreasing and diminishes gradually till the product reaches

The decline stage.

3) Handling The Environment Threats

There are various environment threats faced by a business organisation one way to handle these threats is to find out a new product which is capable enough to combat against it.

4) Other Necessities

The other strategic needs for new product development are as follows

- i) New products can provide the organisation a source for gaining competitive edge.
- ii) New products make best use of research and development.
- iii) New products can bring most out of the marketing practices & brand equity.

* process of new product development

New product development is an eight step process which involves all the key elements required for developing a product these steps are beneficial in getting information input and decision making while developing a new product.

New Product Development Process

Idea Generation

Idea Screening

concept development and Testing

marketing strategy Development

Business analysis

Product Development

Market Testing

commercialisation

1) Idea Generation

The generation often known as the methodical search for new product ideas, is the first step in the process of developing new product. Typically, a corporation may come up with hundreds, or even thousands, of ideas before settling on a select handful that is worth while.

The most important sources of new product ideas come from both inside a company and outside the company in the form of consumers, rivals, distributors, & suppliers, among others.

2) Idea screening

The production of a significant number of idea is the objective of the idea generation process.

As the latter phases of product development come with far higher expenses than the earlier stages most companies will only want to go forward with new product concept that will be result in the highest returns.

3) Concept Development and Concept Testing

Concept development is the step by which a company develops a concept product that can be tested and used to find out whether it has the right product market fit.

In concept testing, new product ideas are tested with groups of people who are likely buy them before developing them into tangible new goods, many businesses first put potential new product ideas through rigorous customer testing.

4) Marketing Strategy Development

Creating a marketing plan and an initial marketing strategy for introducing the new product to the market is the following step in the new product development process. The marketing plan can be categorised into three parts.

- i) The initial part of the report focuses on the market that is going to be targeted. The projected value proposition sales, market share & profit objectives for the first few years.

ii) Secondly the strategy outlines the distribution strategy, planned price and marketing budget for the first year.

iii) The third plan defines the sales and profit in the long-run and also the marketing-mix strategy for future.

5) Business Analysis

After management has settled on its product idea and marketing approach, they can assess the proposition commercial viability. The purpose of ~~conducting~~ a business analysis is to determine whether or not the projected sales, costs, and profit for a new product align with the organizations goals.

In such a case the company can advance the product to the stage of product development.

6) Product Development

Many unique product ideas exist just as a written description, an image or a crude mock-up. If the company can establish the commercial viability of the product idea, then product development may begin.

During this stage R & D or engineering develops the product concept, they investigate whether the product idea is realistic.

7) Market Testing

If the product passes both the idea and product tests, the next phase is test marketing, which involves testing the product and its planned marketing strategy in actual market conditions. Market testing allows a marketer to get experience in marketing a product before investing in a full launch. It will enable the organization to test the product & its complete marketing strategy, including targeting &

Positioning, advertising, Distribution and Price etc.

8) Commercialisation

Test marketing provides management with the data they need to decide whether to launch a new product. If the company proceeds with commercialization, it will incur significant expenditures. Example: The company may need to construct or rent a manufacturing facility. Additionally a compelling new consumer product may require millions of dollars in advertising, sales, promotion, and other marketing operation in the first year.

Example

There are many product development examples - To begin with, let's consider Netflix.

Netflix was once a service for renting movies on DVD. The transition that Netflix made towards streaming media is an excellent example of how to develop product in tandem with changing market trends. Netflix is now one of the most popular over-the-top (OTT) platforms available on the market. The fact that they have now shifted their focus away from licensing preexisting material towards producing original content demonstrates a profound understanding of what consumers want from an OTT streaming firm.

Netflix has seen a need in the consumer market and built a product to fill that void. In response, Netflix iterated the product experience, pricing strategy, and content to address the challenges its subscribers face.

Netflix can now generate more income as it continues to expand due to its product development approach being related to both its business objectives and consumer demands.

Q.2 Write short notes on any TWO

i) Geographical Pricing

Under the geographical pricing technique, a company adopts different strategies to enter different markets at the same time. For the sake of maintaining economies of scale. It may enter a market by offering the product at a cost lower than the competition or follow a penetration strategy to enter the other market.

For Example

The Text books are made available at low prices by the publishers in Asian nations since such nations have lower average wages.

Generally, consumers seek to exchange other items against the one purchased by them, it is called as counter trading. There are various types of counter trading.

ii) Barter - Exchanging goods without using money and any intermediary is called barter system.

ii) Compensation Deal

Here out of the total amount payable to the seller, a certain amt is paid in cash and the remainder is paid through any item.

iii) Buyback Arrangement in this type in exchange to the supplied plant, machinery, technology or the equipment to a foreign country, a seller receives products manufactured with the help of those equipment or machinery as partial payment and the remainder through cash.

2) Differential Pricing

A firm offering the same product with different prices through various market segments is said to use differential pricing strategy. first degree price discrimination includes charging different prices from different customers based on their level of demand for a particular product or item.

second degree price discrimination includes charging comparatively less prices from customers buying product in bulk. In third degree price discrimination different classes of customers are offered at different prices, as per the situations:

- i) customer segment Pricing
Different classes of buyers are offered the same product or services at different prices.
- ii) Product - form Pricing
Prices of different variants or forms of a particular product are different.
- iii) Image Pricing
Image differences help a firm to sell the same product in different price categories. For e.g. a producer selling perfumes can sell the same perfume in two different bottles with distinct product name and identify at separate prices or ₹ 50 and ₹ 200 each

iv) channel pricing

Different prices are set for selling through different distribution channels. For e.g. The popular brand coca cola charges differently for the same product in a fast-food outlet, vending machine located at different location or in a fine-dine restaurant.

Q.3

Write short notes on any two.

i) inventory and Transportation

Inventory

The term - inventory is defined in the dictionaries as "The stock of goods or a list of goods". Different authors defined the word inventory differently. In terms of accounting inventory signifies only the stock of finished goods whereas, to a manufacturing firm, the raw material, work-in-progress, and finished goods kept in stores are all treated as inventory.

Definition

According to Bolton S-E - Inventory refers to stock - pile of product, a firm is offering for sale and components that make up the product.

Functions of Inventory

- Facilitating inventory control
- Increasing Profitability
- Balancing supply and Demand
- Having safety stock
- Geographically specialisation

Transportation

The main function of transportation is to carry the product to different markets, which may be different geographical locations. Apart from transporting the goods, the additional values that transportation provides to the customers are providing the products on time, in the quantities demanded, and in the undamaged form. The utility that transportation provides is called place utility and the utility which is created by the storage is regarded as 'time utility'.

Definition

According to Bukart and medlik. "Transportation can be defined as the means to reach the destination and also the means of movement at the destination.

There are some participants that together facilitate the transportation activities like shipper and consignee, carrier, public & Government.

2) Franchising and Direct Marketing

Franchising

Franchising is an agreement between two company where the owner of a company grants the right to the other party to use its trade name or trademark and also specific business processes and techniques for producing and marketing goods or services. The franchisor provides all these facilities to the franchisee in return of fee.

Definition

According to the international Franchising

Association Franchising is a continuing relationship in which the franchisor provides licensed privilege to do business, plus assistance in organising, training, merchandising and management in return for a consideration from the franchisee.

Following are characteristics of Franchising

- Well - Established Business
- Needs limited investment
- Easy Entry in New markets
- Business has large Establishments
- Facilitates in diverting Business Risks
- Results in large Turnover
- Division of labour and specialisation

Direct Marketing

Direct marketing is a channel through which an organisation communicates with its customers on one-to-one basis and sells its goods and services directly to them. Traditionally in marketing organisation use indirect methods to reach large number of customers. The list of potential event consumers can be purchased by the organised from direct marketing agencies.

Q4 What is communication mix? Explain the various sales promotion activities done for online marketing. Give suitable examples.

Introduction

Promotion / Marketing communication is one of the components of marketing mix. Traditionally, promotion include advertising, sales promotions and personal selling techniques. In modern times, variety of promotional tools with widespread scope is available in the market. These include e-marketing, packaging, customer service, point-of-purchase displays, sponsorship, trade shows, exhibitions and corporate communications.

It can be conclude that promotion mix or marketing communication mix involve Advertising, sales promotion, personal selling, publicity etc.

Definition

According to Philip Kotler, "A company's total marketing communication mix also called promotion mix consists of specific blends of advertising personal selling, sales promotion, public relations and direct marketing tools that the company use to pursue its advertising and marketing objectives.

Following are the sales promotion activities done online marketing

1) Advertising online using banners is one of the most popular methods.

The banner space can be bought on the major search engines. Ad space can be bought on pay per click method which makes it cost economical. Banners are also traded by many of the websites who exchange the banner space with other websites in their network.

2) Blogs, News Groups and mailing lists are also the favourite promotional activities adopted by the various brands.

Blogs create a community of like-minded people and indirectly promote the products and services.

by building brand awareness and building a buzz around the products. News group and mailing lists involve posting messages about the chosen topics to the interested groups.

3) Most of the internet users are used to receiving spam mails. Spam is a method of sending mails to millions of people using electronic mailing list. This is purely unsolicited mails. Such spam mails flood the inbox of users who find it a bother to go through unsolicited mails and happen to delete the mails without going through them.

4) Facebook and Instagram marketing. Facebook and Instagram marketing are powerful digital sales promotion tools because you can reach people across the globe as well as get very specific on who you had like to target. Communication channel rather than an indirect channel such as a social media post or website banner.

Example

Uber :-

Uber is one of the most well-known driving services, and this company's online marketing strategies play a large role in the company's global recognition. One example of how Uber uses online marketing to increase its brand awareness and drive sales is through email marketing and segmentation. The company collects geographical data from its current customers to target new customers through segmented email campaigns. Most notably, Uber will send select demographic in certain areas emails promoting the company before or during a big event in the potential or current customer's location. This keeps Uber at the forefront of a person's mind as they try to navigate traffic and parking as a result of the event and increases sales for the company.

Q5 What is Fringe benefits? Explain its objective.

Definition

According to William B. Wether et al. "Fringe benefits embrace a broad range of benefits and services that employees receive as part of their total compensation packages"

Objectives of Fringe Benefits

- To Attract the most talented Job-seekers
- To Boost motivation of Employees
- To Provide Taxation Benefits
- To Improve manage labour Relations.

To promote companies among employees

objective of Fringe Benefits To Act as assurance of concern

To Reduce HR Cost

1) To Attract The most Talented Job-seekers.

an organisation which offers fringe benefits to its employees enjoys an excellent reputation in the job market and places itself in a prestigious position to attract the best talents.

2) To Boost motivation of Employees organisation use fringes benefits as one of the techniques to boost morale of employees and to motivate them to work sincerely. Also a satisfied employee is a loyal employee.

3) To provide Taxation Benefits

Usually fringe benefits are non-taxable earnings in the hands of employees. This is a benefit in addition to all other basic benefits.

4) To promote companionship among Employees

As fringe benefits are granted to all the employees without being linked to work performance, they promote companionship among employees.

5) To get an assurance of concern

Fringe benefits assure employees that the management is concerned about their needs and difficulties.

6) To Reduce HR cost

Since some of the fringe benefits are distributed collectively to all the employees, the volume of the material or services involved in these benefits would substantially bring down the cost because of acquiring these products or services in bulk.

8 GRIEVANCE RAISED BY STUDENTS FOR THE EXTERNAL THEORY EXAMINATION

Mechanism of internal assessment: The college has developed a comprehensive internal evaluation and assessment process and grievance redressal system as per the norms and guidelines of Savitribai Phule Pune University. The following measures have been adopted by the college to assure that the continuous internal evaluations are conducted as the schedule and in transparent manner. In order to ensure transparency in internal assessment, the system of internal assessment is communicated to the students well in advance through the notice boards, and class counselling. The internal examination committee holds meetings of the faculty under the supervision of the Director and finalize the mechanism for effective implementation of the internal assessment process. The schedule of the internal assessment is given in the academic calendar which is displayed on notice board well in advance before the commencement of the session. The internal examinations are conducted as per academic calendar to check performance of the students. All the records of internal examinations, question papers, evaluated answer sheets/copies, model answer sheets, and summary of marks sheets, are properly maintained by the teachers and then it is submitted to the examination section.

There is complete transparency in the internal assessment as described below:

1. Internal Assessment Marks: Internal assessment marks include assignments, open book test. The continuous internal assessment report for all the courses is submitted to the academic coordinator before sending the marks to the University.
